

UNSW Community & inclusion

UNSW's mission is to be global university, shaping an inclusive and sustainable future for Greater Sydney and NSW with the communities it serves, through a shared vision, engaged presence and transformative partnerships

The university already has presences across Greater Sydney through a number of existing commitments and activities:

Liverpool Innovation Precinct (LIP)

The UNSW Founders LIP Entrepreneurship Program offers free programs and workshops to support South Western Sydney based researchers and entrepreneurs with starting and scaling their ideas. It also aims to encourage women and founders from culturally and linguistically diverse (CALD) backgrounds into entrepreneurship, focusing on supporting social enterprises that solve unmet needs in communities across the region.

In August, the program hosted the inaugural Liverpool Pitch Night showcasing innovative ideas and business ventures. There were over 100 attendees and an esteemed judging panel including Professor Attila Brungs, UNSW's Vice-Chancellor.

- Australia's fastest growing region with estimates indicating 1 in every 11 Australians now living there
- Diversity within the region is also growing with approximately 35% of residents born overseas, speaking more than 100 different languages,
- Has the largest single Indigenous community in the country.
