Activate Prism for all users on this Mac (requires password)

Macs can be set up to allow different users to log in. Sometimes these are called user accounts. Prism can either activate just for one user or for all. By default, Prism activates for the current user only. If any one else logs into this computer using a different user account, he or she will not be able to use Prism (without activating again). Activating Prism for all user accounts on this Mac will require entering an administrative password.
