1 Sino-Korean Numbers (1)

Read aloud the following Sino-Korean numbers.

Alternatively, you can do this exercise in pairs: one person reads the following Sino-Korean numbers aloud and the other writes down the numbers. When finished, swap roles.

- |    |    |    |    |    |    |    |    |    |     |
|----|----|----|----|----|----|----|----|----|-----|
| 8  | 3  | 6  | 1  | 9  | 2  | 4  | 7  | 5  | 10  |
| 70 | 20 | 30 | 10 | 40 | 80 | 60 | 90 | 50 | 100 |
| 65 | 75 | 45 | 85 | 55 | 5  | 15 | 25 | 35 | 95  |
| 14 | 89 | 52 | 35 | 47 | 76 | 0  | 23 | 68 | 91  |

2 Sino-Korean Numbers (2)

Do the same as above. But this time you're practising larger numbers.

- |         |           |           |           |           |     |     |     |     |       |

5 More Hangeul Reading and Writing ...

Have a look at the following words. They include Korean words of English origin, countries' names, and English first names. As you read through, you will find that at least one of the Hangeul characters in each word is not right – it is upside-down, rotated, etc. Your task is to locate the 'funny' character and re-write the word as it is supposed to be. See if you can finish this exercise within two minutes.
